Q11. Please share a House Sparrow story on the other side of this sheet

Dear Sparrow lover,

Thank you for participation in Citizen Sparrow and for helping interview others to gather more information about House Sparrows. On this page we describe some guidelines for using this questionnaire.

Why this questionnaire?

While the online questionnaire on the Citizen Sparrow website has been very popular, it is clear that there are a large number of people with information about sparrows, but without access to the internet. This questionnaire has been made so that all of us can print copies and interview people in our localities so that their sparrow observations can also be recorded.

Whom should you interview?

You can interview anyone who knows what a House Sparrow is (please make sure before starting the interview)! From the point of view of the Citizen Sparrow project, it is most useful to interview people who have stayed in a particular area for a long time – these could be shopkeepers, for example, or residents. These people will be able to give information for different time periods. Please do interview people even if they say sparrows are or were absent in that area. Information on absence is very valuable!

For your convenience, you could choose an area close to where you live or work, but again anywhere is fine. If you are able to visit areas outside cities (for example, smaller towns or villages) that would be particularly useful. We would request you to carry out 5-10 interviews, but if you only do fewer that's fine; and if you can do more that would be much appreciated!

How should you interview?

Please print out copies of the questionnaire and take them with you. Do remember to fill out all parts of the form, taking particular care to write down all details of the location, so that you can later find it on the online map. While interviewing someone, please be careful not to influence their answers. We sometimes do this without even realising it! Just by saying something as simple as “Oh, isn't it sad that sparrows have declined?”, we can influence what the other person will say. This should be avoided as far as possible!

You will notice that the questions in the form are numbered. These numbers correspond to the numbers in the online form on www.citizensparrow.in. Don't worry that Q3 comes between Q6 and Q7. This is because, in this form we have given space for a person to give information about three time periods (eg, 1995-1999 or 2010-2012, etc). Please try and get information for all possible time periods that the person can remember. If this is more than three time periods, please use a separate sheet to record that information.

How should you submit the information?

To submit this information online, please login to your account on www.citizensparrow.in. Please take particular care in locating and clicking on the exact spot on the online map. Please make sure that you carefully enter the information in Q2, that is, the details of the person you interviewed. If the person you interviewed gave information from multiple time periods, you will have to fill out a separate online form for each time period: once you fill out the information from the first time period, click on the button at the bottom that says “Add info from a different time period”, so that you don't have to enter the location details again.

If you have any trouble entering the information online, please email us at info@citizensparrow.in

If you are absolutely unable to enter the information through your online account with Citizen Sparrow, you can post the completed interview forms to us at the address below, and we will enter the information for you. But please note that errors are more likely to creep in this way (especially errors about the location), and so it is by far the best if you can enter the information directly yourself!

Even if you do enter the information online, we would appreciate it if you can post your completed forms to the address below, so that we can collate all the forms and keep them safely.
